

Taw Turbine Action Group

...preserving the distinctive Devonshire landscape

9 December 2012

PLANNING BLIGHT

Extract from e-mail correspondence within the Taw Turbine Action Group

The "the need to know" got the better of me and so I rang Nick Leaney at Aardvark to see if he could give me any update on possible timing of the Clotworthy planning application. He was trying to be helpful and said at the moment Murex have 6 proposals in Cornwall and 5 others in Devon, all of which are due to go to planning in the near future and so these are their focus at the moment.

He said the Clotworthy turbine was not even being discussed at present and that realistically he did not expect it to come back on the agenda until the middle of next year.

Reply

In the meantime there is effectively a planning blight hanging over our area re persons wishing to buy or sell houses and this is not an acceptable state for our locality to be in.